A CROSS THE ALPS into beautiful Germany to the heart of Berlin.

History tells us that Berlin was a united territory. It was the only city in the world which was not captured by the forces of the Allies.

Without even a single day of fighting, Berlin was captured by the forces of the Allies. It was the only city in the world which was not captured by the forces of the Allies.

The most recent report of the Allies is that Berlin is now a united territory. It was the only city in the world which was not captured by the forces of the Allies.

There is no need to say that Berlin is now a united territory. It was the only city in the world which was not captured by the forces of the Allies.
